The tradition of John Beargrease continues

Kathy Jacobson led the 12th annual Beargrease Marathon as she came through Two Harbors. Jacobson told a cameraman from KBJR to, "Tell Barbara I want barbecued chicken when I get into Duluth."

The 12th annual John Beargrease Sled Dog Marathon kicked off on January 8, with 17 mushers racing for a piece of the $50,000 guaranteed minimum purse.

The 500-mile-race starts in Duluth, goes through a number of North Shore towns, turns around in Grand Portage, and comes back to Duluth. At 10 p.m. Wednesday, Jamie Nelson of Togo was in the lead. The race is scheduled to end sometime Thursday.

The marathon is named after John Beargrease, a son of a Chippewa Chief, who delivered the mail up and down the North Shore by sled dog.

There are two other races run each year along with the 500; the 190 and the 100. Mark Milford of Wisconsin won the 190 with a time of 31 hours, 38 minutes, and collected $1,500. Twenty-five mushers competed in the race, which finished Tuesday morning.

1895 - 1995: UMD to celebrate a century

By Zach Johns
Editor in Chief

1995 is a year for UMD to party, party, party — and the administration is supporting it! UMD is going to spend the next two years celebrating its rich history upon reaching two very important milestones.

100 years ago the Duluth Normal School was established. That school eventually evolved into Duluth State Teacher's College and ultimately to UMD. Besides celebrating the one hundredth anniversary of the Duluth Normal School, UMD itself will turn 50 years old in 1997. Therefore, a number of campus-wide celebrations are being planned that will show UMD's pride from now until 1997.

A "UMD Celebration Committee" has been formed to plan events to honor UMD's "coming of age." The committee includes approximately 60 people who are faculty, staff, administrators, students, alumni and community members who wish to show their pride in the campus.

According to committee member Neale Roth, the ideas for the celebration "kind of snowballed."

"We met for a day and a half downtown here and brain stormed. What can we do? How can we involve the community, the campus, the state, the alumni?" he said.

To fulfill these goals, the committee then divided into smaller groups to concentrate on different facets of organizing such a large event. There are groups in charge of marketing the event, getting alumni involved, fund raising, and organizing an all-class reunion committee.

There is also a Campus Programs committee, which was formed to make sure UMD's current student body gets involved in the celebration.

Roth, who is the Campus Programs committee chairperson, said the committee wants to tell current students that "they are part of the total legacy that goes on from the last hundred years."

"We'll have events going on all year which everybody will be involved with."

Neale Roth

According to Roth, his committee is finding that many different divisions of the UMD campus are also approaching milestones during the next year and will be big parts of the celebration. "We'll have events going on all year which everybody will be involved with. Athletics will be celebrating with us, the Tweed Museum - everybody that is a part of the university will be," Roth said.

Besides just celebrating pride in UMD, the festivities would provide lots of positive publicity for the campus, and to highlight it's history for prospective students. "We thought this would be a great vehicle to bring some recognition to UMD — it's a great recruitment tool," said Roth. "We as an institution tend to get caught in the shadows of the Minneapolis campus."

Another big part of the celebration will be a book on the history of UMD which is being headed by UMD history professor Neil Storch, along with Jackie Moran, Ken Moran, and Steve Hedman. Storch and his colleagues hope to chronicle a detailed history of UMD including many archival photographs into a publication in time for the 50-year celebration in 1997.

"The project expanded and expanded and expanded," said Storch. "We began to realize that all these important anniversaries were coming up and that we needed to do something."

An exceptional amount of tireless research has already been completed on the project. Storch is amazed at how much has been done. "For example, an intensive program of interviewing of retired faculty members, retired administrators, a member of the board of regents — we are now going to start interviewing politicians who were very influential in the future of UMD as well."

All of these groups will be working hard in the coming months to get the word out to the UMD community that it is time to celebrate. Read the Statesman in upcoming weeks for updates of future celebratory activities.

Fighting continues in Chechnya

Chechen President Dzhokar Dudayev, appearing publicly for the first time in days, said he was still willing to hold talks with Russia and stressed that the war had to end because of the senseless casualties. But there was no evidence of peace in the battered Chechen capital.

Heavy artillery shelling rocked the center and Russian and Chechen forces engaged in fierce fighting, shattering an uneasy calm that had prevailed early in the day.

Russia sent troops to Chechnya last month to quash the breakaway republic's independence drive.

Moose stomps man to death

An agitated moose, taunted and harassed for hours by students as it roamed the University of Alaska campus with its calf, trampled a 71-year-old man to death.

The moose charged Myong Chin Ra as he tried to slip inside the gymnasium, said campus police Officer Jim Milne. Ra fell as he tried to run away.

"She'd get on her front legs and kick with her back legs," said student Shane Harvey. "He probably got stomped about a dozen times."

People had been throwing snowballs, yelling, whistling, and shouting at the moose and calf for hours, and the animals were agitated when Ra arrived Monday and tried to walk past them, witnesses said.

Cybersex

New York state Senator William Sears is proposing a law that would make it a felony to conduct sexual communications with minors on computer.

The idea for the law comes after a 51-year-old Seattle man was arrested and charged in New York with a misdemeanor for sending sexually explicit photographs of himself to teen-agers.

The law would punish such crimes with prison time. Computer industry experts said they believed it was the first attempt by a state government to regulate on-line communications.

50 unknown galaxies discovered

Astronomers looking for extremely faint objects have found 50 previously unknown galaxies in what was thought to be a vast cosmic emptiness 500 times the size of the Milky Way.

A team of astronomers reported Tuesday that a region some 700 million light years from Earth once identified as the largest void in the sky actually contains galaxies that were overlooked in previous studies.

The region, called the Bootes Void, is near the handle of the Big Dipper when viewed from the Earth.

A tribute to Beargrease

Race pays tribute to legend and pays out $50,000

By Jesse White
News Editor

The 12th annual John Beargrease Sled Dog Marathon, which kicked off at 11:00 a.m., Sunday, Jan. 8, is expected to conclude sometime on Thursday morning with the last musher pulling into Duluth around 5:00 p.m. Friday.

The 500-mile race from Duluth to Grand Portage and back will feature some 17 teams vying for the $10,000 first prize. But the tradition of the Beargrease goes deeper than money.

John Beargrease, the son of a Chippewa Indian Chief, whom the race is named after, delivered the mail. His sled dog route between the settlements of Two Harbors and Grand Marais in the late 1800's was the main source of contact along the North Shore during Minnesota's frigid winters.

During the warmer part of the year he traveled by canoe or rowboat.

Beargrease was born in 1858 and was a member of the Grand Portage band of to the outside world.

Each winter between the years 1879 and 1899, Beargrease traveled by sled dog over hand-cleared trails and the always dangerous ice of Lake Superior to deliver the mail on time.

Beargrease once completed the trip from Two Harbors to Grand Marais in 20 hours. Not only that, Beargrease only used four dogs, compared to the seven to 16 dogs used today. Furthermore, his sled was similar to a toboggan, compared to the high-tech sleds used today.

His journey also included no bridges over the numerous creeks and rivers, no headlamps, and no convenience stores.

Today's mushers carry two headlamps, a knife, a sleeping bag, snowshoes and bindings, an ax, promotional materials, cable cutter, and a mailbag.

For Beargrease, the job of mail carrier was a weekly, or biweekly, adventure for which he earned about $20 a month. Sometimes he completed two round trip runs a week, depending on the amount of his death, Beargrease and his tremendous feats seemed to fade into history.

In the 1970's, a race called the Gunflint Mail Run, two 50 mile-races along the Gunflint trail in two days was the only race around. Then, in 1980, the first John Beargrease Sled Dog Race, a one-way trek to Grand Marais from Duluth, brought back the spirit of Beargrease.

Beargrease once completed the trip from Two Harbors to Grand Marais in 20 hours. Not only that, Beargrease only used four dogs, compared to the seven to 16 dogs used today.

In 1984 the first round trip Marathon took place and the event has just gotten bigger ever since. Last year the Beargrease was spotlighted on ESPN, the cable sports network.

In that 1980 race, eighteen teams competed for a prize of $1,800 plus a $100 guarantee for every team that reached Duluth. Gary Hokkanen, a resident of Buick, won the race in 15 hours, 47 minutes and 17 seconds.

The purse for this year's race is $50,000.

Plans were made for a second Beargrease in 1981, but a lack of snow forced a cancellation, and it wasn't until 1984 that the Beargrease took off again.

In 1984, Kevin Turnbough, of Grand Marais won the marathon in 66 hours, one minute, 28 seconds. John Patten of Grand Marais, won the '85 race in 73 hours, 29 minutes, 47 seconds.

In 1988 another 100 miles was added to the race. Then, in 1988, 1989, and 1990 three women won the Beargrease. The most notable woman was Susan Butcher, a four-time winner of Alaska's Iditarod sled dog race, who shattered the previous record by 10 hours, finishing in 87 hours, 15 minutes.

This year's Beargrease includes more than just the 500-mile trek. There are two other races; the Beargrease 190, with a $7000 purse, and the Beargrease 100, with a $3500 purse.

The 190 is a race to Grand Marais and the 100 is a race to Beaver Bay. Also included in the Beargrease were a cutest puppy contest held in Canal Park and Skijoring demonstrations in Lester Park. Skijoring is dogs pulling a person on skis.

Some of the information contained in this story was found in the Duluth News-Tribune and a press kit provided by the Beargrease organizers.

Chippewa. He was a hunter, fisherman, trapper, and sailor.

He died in 1910 of pneumonia contracted when he went to the aid of another mail carrier whose boat was caught in high waves off Tamarack point in Grand Portage Bay.

Beargrease apparently played an important role in the development of the North Shore. His mail delivery was, for some, an all important link mail.

Beargrease did this for 20 years. By the time he died in 1910, a little progress was made in the postal business. Mail was carried by horse and wagon or by boat.

Beargrease was somewhat responsible for the improvements in mail delivery. His efficient use of horses helped convince the officials of Lake County to eventually build the Lake Shore Road. Soon after

Heidi Broekemeier

A wise friend recently whispered to me the words "money, money, money...money, money, money..." after participating in a class discussion about rights versus privileges.

My friend's response, to which I responded with an emphatic yes, and this discussion comes at a time when it appears there is more emphasis being placed on "balancing the budget," "controlling spending," making "contracts," and deciding what we can afford.

Webster says that a "right" is something "due to anyone by just claim, legal guarantees and moral principles." These "moral principles" and what is "right" are what some people

(one political party in particular) have based their tactics. A privilege, says Webster, is "a benefit enjoyed by a particular person or restricted group of persons."

It is a privilege to have money; it is a benefit we enjoy. It is also a privilege to earn money. It is a privilege to spend it, too. The American society is based on this fact.

Most Americans, including myself, had the privilege of being born into a society where "benefits" could be enjoyed. I was given parents who had the opportunity to give me an opportunity. But there are those who do not have opportunity. Isn't money the only thing which distinguishes between me and that person?

Why must everything revolve around money - the haves and have-nots, the "we have more and work harder, therefore we deserve more?" What happened to humanity? Does one human being deserve health care over someone else just because one can pay for it and the other cannot? Why should a person be denied health simply because they lack the almighty dollar?

Don't get me wrong. Money is nice. Capitalism is not all bad. But when the size of one's pocket book decides what "rights" he or she should be granted, it has gone too far.

My life is a privileged one which I greatly appreciate. Under no circumstances do I consider myself rich. My parents have worked hard to support me. But what if there were no jobs available? What if there were no schools? No banks? (Heavens! What am I saying?!) I was born into a country, a family, a society, that could support me, and I have never been deprived food, clothing, shelter, or other necessities, like some unfortunate individuals have.

Life, liberty, the pursuit of happiness, property, education, house, home, health....the list goes on and on. Do we only "deserve" these things if we can afford them? Why should one individual have any more right to them as someone else? Aren't we all living and breathing creatures of this world? We must remember that there are those in this world who do not have the opportunities that many of us often take for granted.

My parents have often told me that I will change some of my views on this issue (after I "get older," "get a real job," and "start paying a lot more taxes"). I HOPE NOT! How could any reasonable person not want to help another? Shouldn't we have more feelings for a person, just for being a person, than for one because he or she can't support themselves?

Isn't it ridiculous that there are people in this country who feel they should have a bigger piece of the pie? Don't they realize that this "pie" is a privilege. And where do they think the pie came from in the first place? I don't think people realize, or maybe they forgot. "I worked my way up, shouldn't everyone else have to too?" they say. HELLO. The privileges they enjoy are enjoyed only because the opportunity was available to them. Someone without money has just as much "right" as another.

In this same class discussion, a student made the comment that we should "hire a flaming liberal" to debate and see the other side of this issue, implying that most of the class leaned to the "right" on this issue. I hope, however, that humanitarians are not just members of one political party.

I agree there is a difference between "handing" something to someone and having them work for it. But if they aren't given the opportunity, how can they achieve it?

Hmmmmmm....a flaming liberal? Meaning? (Many heads turned toward my friend). I will not take offense to this comment, but I would like to remind everyone that a life is a life; we are all human beings. And just because one has more "money" than another, doesn't mean we have the right OR privilege to deny them the right to live a life.

I suggest we as Americans, as human beings, before checking how much money we have in the bank, determine what we would do if there wasn't one.

Broekemeier is a political science major from Morgan, MN, who would like to thank Matt, Jeff, and Julie for the mind-broadening conversations - if the "opportunity" arises.

The possibility that UMD will raise its admission standards in order to remain competitive with the U of M Twin Cities campus was the subject of a press conference held on Thursday, December 22, 1994. The conference was held in response to an article published in the December 21, 1994, issue of the Duluth News-Tribune.

"We feel very good about our student body," Vice Chancellor for Academic Support and Student Life Bruce Gildseth said in clarifying UMD's position on this issue. "Personally, I do not see much change in the next few years."

A decision to raise admission standards in hopes of increasing graduation rates was made by the Twin Cities campus and the Board of Regents last month. The goal of the new policy is to have 80 percent of its freshman students come from the top 25 percent of their high school class by the year 2000.

According to Gildseth, UMD is within a couple of percentage points of this goal. "We are right on track without any change in our current admissions policy," he stated.

The News-Tribune article suggested that those students who were not able to meet the Twin Cities campus' standards would then be able to gain admission at UMD if the current standards remain. The idea that UMD would only attract UM-Twin Cities cast-offs offended administrators and students alike.

"This is the most qualified student body that has ever existed on this campus. We are very proud of our students."

Greg Fox
Vice Chancellor

"We have a competitive student body, and it is an insult to even suggest this," said Greg Fox, vice chancellor for finance and operations. "Our students are every bit as qualified as the students at the Twin Cities campus."

"UMD has talented students of great ability," Fox went on to say. "This is the most qualified student body that has ever existed on this campus. We are very proud of our students."

UMD junior Jared Hageman, a Human Resource Management major from Little Canada, doesn't think there will be a problem with the difference in admission standards. "I'm from the Cities, I was accepted at several colleges, and I chose to come to UMD," Hageman said. "It's lame to say UMD wouldn't be able to attract good students on its own and that we would get all the Twin Cities campus rejects."

Gildseth considers UMD's admissions standards for incoming freshman competitive. "We are selective, but we are not elitist," he said. "UMD accepts students who are in the top 35 percent of their high school class, and those students who are in the top 35-60 percent by looking at other areas." These areas include ACT scores and academic preparation.

A discussion involving faculty and the educational policy committee would be required before any changes to the current admissions policy could be made.

Three ways to beat the high cost of college.

1. The Montgomery GI Bill
2. Student loan repayment
3. Part-time income

The Army Reserve Alternate Training Program is a smart way to pay for college.

First, if you qualify, the Montgomery GI Bill can provide you with up to $6,840 for current college expenses or approved vo/tech training.

Second, if you have- or obtain- a qualified student loan not in default, you may get it paid off at the rate of 15% per year or $500, whichever is greater, up to a maximum of $10,000. Selected military skills can double the maximum.

Third, you can earn part-time money in college, and here is how it works: One summer you take Basic Training, and the next summer you receive skill training at an Army school. You'll earn over $1,500 for Basic and even more for skill training. Then you'll attend monthly meetings at an Army Reserve unit near your college, usually one weekend a month plus two weeks a year. You'll be paid over $105 a weekend to start. It's worth thinking about.

Student service fee explained

By Michael Carney
Staff Writer

Every quarter students at UMD who have six or more day-school credits pay a student service fee of $96.45. This money is spread to different organizations on campus that provide services to students.

This fee provides the entire budget for some of these organizations, and it helps to supplement others. These organizations could not continue to provide the services that they do now without this money from students.

Each year the Student Services Fees Committee evaluates each organization and determines how funding can be distributed.

This is an administrative committee appointed by the Chancellor each year. Student members of the committee are recommended by the UMD Student Association President.

The committee consists of a total of 13 members, eight from the student body and five from the UMD staff. The overall role of this committee is to determine funding for campus groups while keeping in mind the group's needs and the cost to students. Another objective of the committee is to evaluate the manner in which the money is being managed by the organizations which receive the fees.

In order to decide on proper appropriation they review the budget plans from each organization and vote on what they feel to be a fair amount. Each organization which receives fees is invited each year by the committee to speak on their requested funding for the next year. At this meeting, the Student Service Fees Committee receives the proposal, which includes a budget, and works with the group to determine its goals.

Later, the committee reviews the results of this meeting. From there, the committee eventually votes on the amount of money which that particular organization will receive based on past money received, the practicality of the request, and need.

The budget is then sent to the Chancellor, who evaluates and reviews it. Ultimate approval is then sought from the Board of Regents on the Twin Cities campus. The committee must go through the process of listening to and reviewing each of the 22 organizations that are receiving money, plus they listen to the requests of new organizations which seek to receive funds.

Three new organizations are receiving money from the student services fee this year. They are the Tweed Museum, the Women's Resource and Action Center, and Southeast Asian-American Student Services. For next year only one group has applied for money. This is the Bright Futures Network which provides an alternative to alcohol on campus by sponsoring alcohol free activities.

In order to provide for the care of the Recreational Sports facilities and fields an additional seven dollars is added. With this, the fee is totaled at $103.45 for each student.

The total allocation of money for the 1994-1995 school year was $2,097,903. This number is based on a projected number of students that will attend UMD each quarter. A 10 percent reserve is kept on hand in case of a shortage of students.

Over the past nine years the fee has been rising by an average of four percent. Between the 1993-1994 and 1994-1995 school year, however, the fee rose by 10 percent.

Input from students on their wishes and interests is very important to the process. Questions regarding any of the services provided for under the fee can be directed at the organizations themselves. You can also express your opinions to the UMD Student Association in their office in Kirby Student Center or can call them at 726-7178.

Your What Hurts?

Megan
Ross

For all of you out there struggling through a relationship, are you having trouble understanding your better half? Well, worry no longer. You're in luck because of the brilliance and intelligence of one man, John Gray, Ph.D.

This is a man who is light years ahead of his time when it comes to expressing his own feelings and understanding a woman's. A man who has written a book, entitled Men Are From Mars, Women Are From Venus, that could change your life. Oh, wait a second here, I just realized something. It's the 1990's, not the 1890's. Silly me. It's just that after reading the often sexist junk that the good doctor passes off as a guide for "improving communication and getting what you want in your relationships," it is easy to forget what century we are living in.

I came across a copy of Dr. Gray's book over break, and the combination of being slightly curious and completely bored compelled me to begin reading. After a few pages, I was quietly chuckling to myself. Mid-way through the book, I was laughing out loud and getting mad at the same time. By the time I finished wading through all of the doctor's supposedly educated and enlightened views, I realized that everyone out there is selling themselves short. Not about their chances of having a wonderfully fulfilling relationship John Gray-style, but about their careers. If this guy, O.J. Simpson, and Newt Gingrich can all get book deals, anyone can.

To save you from ever having to waste your time reading this book for yourself, I thought I'd share some of the highlights from this, uh, interesting book. To all the men out there: Would you like to know how to score points with women? I thought so. With you in mind, the illustrious doctor has provided a list of 101 ways to do just that. Try #64, "buy some good Super Glue to fix things that are broken." Or how about #65, "offer to change light bulbs as soon as they go out." Want more? #80 suggests that "when listening to her, reassure her that you are interested by making little noises like ah ha, uh-huh, oh, mm-huh, and hmmm." Funny, I usually do that when I'm trying to convince someone I am listening when the truth is that my mind is a million miles away.

Not wanting to leave the women put, Dr. Gray also suggests several ways to score points with men. According to the doctor, a woman shouldn't "give advice when he is driving or parking the car and then appreciate him for getting her there." When he refuses her request for support, "she does not reject or disapprove of him." My favorite suggestion: "She feels disapproving and instead of expressing it she goes in another room and privately centers herself and then comes back with a more centered and loving heart." Yeah, right. My question is, when do you get to be angry and fight if you want? When do you tell the other person exactly what is on your mind? I guess I always thought that expressing one's feelings was favored over leaving the room, bottling angry feelings inside, and "centering" oneself. Just what is "centering" anyway?

The fun doesn't even end there. Ladies, you can't imagine the insights this man has to offer us. For instance, I learned that when a man is upset I shouldn't ask him too many questions or he will feel as though I am trying to change him. I also found out that a woman should never offer unsolicited advice to her significant other because he will feel mistrusted, controlled, or rejected.

The doctor is basically saying that a woman should stay in the background and let the man take the lead in every aspect of their lives together. Well, not every aspect, I guess. Giving credit where credit is due, Dr. Gray does seem to think that a woman may have it in her to take charge of child-rearing and domestic responsibilities. Reality check: Did you just emerge from a cave, Dr. Gray? We're in the 20th century here.

A few of the underlying ideas found in the book do have obvious merit: Listen, be honest, and respect one another. However, he gives no credit to men or to women for being open-minded and flexible beings. In order to make his advice as general as possible, Dr. Gray allows himself to fall back on old stereotypes. If this attitude works for him, more power to him, I guess. I just think that Dr. Gray needs a calendar and a clue to go along with his Ph.D.

Ross is from White Bear Lake and thanks her parents and all of the Discussion Club for their examples of how relationships should be done.

March to remember MLK, Jr.

By Heidi Broekemeier
Copy Editor

"We must remember that intelligence is not enough. Intelligence plus character - that is the goal of true education. The complete education gives one not only power of concentration, but worthy objectives upon which to concentrate. The broad education will, therefore, transmit to one not only the accumulated knowledge of the race but also the accumulated experience of social living." Martin Luther King, Jr.

To help commemorate Martin Luther King, Jr. Day on Jan. 16, UMD will host the third annual Candlelight March, sponsored by the UMD Black Student Association, on Thursday, Jan. 12.

The event will begin at 6 p.m. in Kirby Student Center with all participants lighting a candle and starting a procession around campus. Weather permitting, the procession will continue outside.

The event is guaranteed to be a "moving experience," said Ken Foxworth, Coordinator of the UMD African-American Student Services.

This year's event's theme is "The Year of the Woman," and in accordance with the theme, the commemoration will feature Betty Thompson, Executive Community Service Coordinator for St. Louis County, St. Louis, MO. Thompson will speak in the Kirby Ballroom following the March, around 7 p.m. "She is one of the most dynamic women I have met," said Foxworth. "You are going to miss a great event if you don't come."

The idea for the March came from Foxworth and the BSA a few years ago when they saw a need to do something different and visible on the UMD campus to remember Martin Luther King, Jr. According to Foxworth, last year's turnout for the event was good, but it is still growing.

The March is not only for minority students, added Foxworth. Although the BSA, Southeastern Asian Association, Native American Association, and the Hispanic Organization, support and help organize the event, everyone is welcome.

Alisiann Valdez, member of the Hispanic Organization, said that the March is a great way to remember Martin Luther King, Jr., and creates a special time to help promote peace. "If you can see something visible, people are more interested and it makes them think," Valdez explained.

The Candlelight March is for everyone. "It gives a sense of unity," added Jessica Aviles, another member of the organization. "It's not a Black issue. It's a people issue."

Foxworth encourages everyone to come and remember a great leader. He said he would like to see every organization represented at the event, and added that in the past the UMD Student Association has been supportive of the event.

"It (the event) represents a lot," said Jason Holmes, member of the BSA. "Not only African-Americans, but everyone."

Holmes remembers last year's event as a success. "It was a real moving experience," he said. And according to the organizers, this year will be just as memorable.

SA BEAT

The following are highlights from the Wed., Jan 11 meeting of the UMD Student Association:

The third annual Candlelight March to be held at 6 p.m. on Thursday, Jan. 12, to commemorate Martin Luther King, Jr. was discussed. All SA members were encouraged to take part.

SA is continuing to look into hooking up the SA office to the email network. Marnie Brown, chair of the Budget and Finance Committee, got permission to talk to Information Services to verify if they would need to purchase a modem or not.

Letters of loan and grant application have been sent to all campus organizations.

SA was asked to help look into the designing and selling of t-shirts promoting Run For Excellence II. SA members were encouraged to get involved.

Lobby Day at the Capitol is set for April 5. SA wants to get as many students as possible to participate, and Susan Schultz, SA president, encouraged members to get the word out.

The Fall Quarter Variance Report, with a balance of $364.54, was discussed. There was an outstanding late-fee bill of $904, a result of last year's debt, and was taken out of miscellaneous expenses. Deanna Jokela, Vice President of Business Affairs, complemented SA and was encouraged to see the balance. She asked for ideas for projects, but also mentioned a concern for a need for a safety net of $300.

Schultz suggested preparing a resolution to support the Library Needs Assessment Draft. The document will be available in the SA office for anyone to read.

A Leadership Conference will be held at UMD on Sat., Jan. 21 from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. All members were encouraged to attend.

Schultz announced that the choice for the next UMD Chancellor has been made and will be formally announced on Friday, Jan. 13.

The annual SA Dating Game is coming up, to be held at the end of January, during UMD's Winter Carnival. Laura Speirs, VP of Student Affairs, encouraged signing up for a committee to discuss its organization.

Don Ness, Student Consultative Committee, is setting up a committee to work with administration dealing with tuition and fees. He asked for interested members.

There was a request for more Executive Board meetings.

The SA Winter Banquet was set for Friday, Feb. 10.

Student input needed in planning of new library

By Heidi Broekemeier
Copy Editor

Editor's Note: This is the second story in a two-part series involving the Library Needs Assessment.

"Students have a tremendous amount of impact on legislators and the central administrations - sometimes even more than faculty," explained Linda Deneen, Director of UMD Information Services and a member of the task force responsible for the Library Needs Assessment.

UMD students are being challenged to make their views known and "get behind" support of a new library facility at UMD.

Harlan Stech, chair of Library Advisory Committee, said they want input from students, faculty, staff, and other campus committees, and they want it quickly. He encourages students to contact campus representatives with their ideas and concerns regarding the UMD library facility.

"I feel very strongly that we need a new state-of-the-art library facility, one that will bring us into the 21st century," said Sandra Featherman, UMD Vice Chancellor of Acaademic Affairs. She said that students should become active and inform their parents and legislators that UMD is in need of a new library facility.

Campus governing committees including Educational Policy Committee, Library Policy Committee, Sub-committee of Information Services, and the Campus Planning Committee, have all been asked to provide input for the Needs Assessment. Although the final decision will be made by the Minnesota Legislature in allocating funds for the project and not until the 1996 Legislative session, the UMD administration would like input from the UMD campus in planning for the project.

Currently the UMD administration is waiting for permission from the University of Minnesota for the architects to start reviewing the library needs. "Hopefully it will be soon," said Bill Sosanski, Director of the UMD Library. It is hoped that the architects will help develop and define the scope of the project. Cost and location will be important. After the architects review the library and its needs, it is hoped that along with student, faculty, and administration concerns, a final plan will be written up to be submitted to the Minnesota Legislature.

"We don't want to give the impression that a new library will be built," said Sosanski, adding that there may only be major renovations or additions to the UMD library. But there are going to be changes made, he added. He said he would like to see students take the campaign for a new library as a priority, even though the new facility will probably not be available for current students because it will not be built for at least three or four years, when many current students will no longer attend UMD.

The first phase of the project, to include the architects' review of the library, is hoped to be finished or in the works by the middle of March.

Students are encouraged to use e-mail and give their suggestions to representatives around campus. "I welcome any input," said Stech. The Student Association is also asking for student input in writing a resolution to give to the UMD Administration.

America's #1 Green Collar Job.

If you're looking for a part-time job to support your college education, choose one that's neither "white" collar nor "blue" collar.

It's sort of green — with various shades that let you blend into the trees as a member of the Minnesota Army National Guard.

It's quite a job. For two weeks a year and one weekend a month, you're eligible for up to $6,120 in education assistance with the Montgomery GI Bill, plus 50% tuition reimbursement from the Minnesota Army National Guard. You can also apply for an additional $2,000 enlistment bonus. And you'll earn a minimum salary of $11,000 during the course of your enlistment.

You'll dress for...work?

Well, yes, you can call it work. Most call it exciting: Rappelling down a tower, crossing the terrain in a tank — that sort of thing. You'll also learn new skills in communications, computers, electronics and hundreds of technical fields.

And you'll make a lot of new friends who share the same goals you have for a part-time job. Better get started now. Call

WHY IS THIS BOY SCREAMING?

Is it because it was raining - not snowing - yesterday? Is it because the cute girl he skied with in Utah was even younger than the infamous "Violet"? Is it because of the bloody nose he got from that tiny (but tough) young woman playing broomball before break?

All good guesses, but not even close. He's screaming because he's only slept a total of about three hours this entire week. He's screaming because he's spent about 55 of the past 72 hours in Kirby Student Center. He's screaming because he has barely enough time to go to class much less study, lift weights or, God forbid, ski.

The reason for this is because he is not only the Statesman's Editor in Chief, he's also the Managing Editor. Sure he's making a ton of money doing both jobs, but if he flunks out of school he can't do either of them. So regrettably he's decided he'd rather be Editor in Chief, leaving a very prestigious position on the Statesman staff up for grabs.

So come on down to Kirby 118 and

The 7th Brady

Zach Johns

Yes, it's been a while but the 7th Brady has returned. I know many of you may have thought I got taken away by the Secret Service after the Clinton visit or ran away with a fifteen-year-old ski bunny but no, I am alive and well. Of course now I've got a new position here at the Statesman, that of Editor in Chief or something like that. One of my duties in that capacity is to handle the letters to the editor page. As with all papers, there are some times when all the letters cannot fit onto the page and are not run. Well, since I became Editor we've had quite a few of those, and in this column I'd like to run a few of those and provide a well-thought editorial response. Here goes:

Dear Editor, does Jesse White get paid by the number of people he offends each week? - S. J. Freshman, CSE.

Well S.J., it's interesting that you think that because yes, he does. Although I usually have to go through his column every week and remove an enormous amount of libelous material, he manages to make at least $150 per week from the offensive clause. In addition, we have a special incentive program which pays him $100 for every letter we get from a member of the history department, so, as you can tell, Jesse can't walk around second floor A. B. Anderson without a bodyguard. But hey, he's pretty rich.

Dear Editor, have you ever thought of changing the title of your column? - C. K. Sophomore, CLA.

Actually, I almost did this Fall. "The Eighth Castaway" honoring Gilligan's Island almost made it into this space. And next year, if I'm still here (which I probably will) I would have written "Nine is Enough." But I feel "once a Brady, always a Brady" (That's why no member of the Brady Bunch has gotten a single acting role besides The Love Boat, Fantasy Island, and Brady Bunch reunions since the show went off the air).

Dear Editor, did you and your geeky roommates compete in the apartment decorating contest this year? - A. J. Sophomore, CLA.

Yes, we geeks who live in 315A Oakland were back and were mad after being robbed last year in Goldfine. This year we had 2,000 lights and a new decorating coordinator in Cory Johnson (yes, the talented young actor who dazzled audiences as Scrooge's nephew Fred in the Depot's presentation of "A Christmas Carol.") And guess what! Not only did we win, but we raked in a couple hundred bucks from people using our immensely lighted room as a sauna!

Dear Editor, who do you think should have been rated #1 in college football? P. F. Worthington, PA.

Penn State, all the way! There's no way you can tell me that the Nebraska corn dogs could even be on the same field as Joe Paterno's mighty gladiators of the gridiron. Kerry Collins would just laugh at that pathetic defense and Ki-jana Carter would probably go the whole game without being tackled. And then, if the Nittney Lions put me in the backfield, I'd just plow over everybody with babes cheering and - oh, sorry Tobin. Did I take your column idea?

Dear Editor, when can we expect your next boring column about skiing? - A. H. Sophomore, CSE.

Well, I just returned from an incredibly orgasmic trip to Utah, so perhaps next week...

Dear Editor, if you can answer any piece of obscure civil war trivia anyone throws at you, why did you do so poorly on your last history exam? - R. F. Professor, CLA.

Well, I guess I'm just not as good a BS'er as Megan. But hey, I did know what the Emancipation Proclamation was!

Dear Editor, how do you find time to be Editor in Chief, and Managing Editor, and write hockey stories, and news stories, and columns, and be a full-time student? - M. R. Junior, CLA

See ad, this page.

Johns now realizes he must check the I.D. of every girl he skis with.

I resolve to ...

Well it's a brand new year and that means one thing: everybody has one or two or five of those stupid New Year's resolutions. So to start the new year off right, I'd like to suggest a few resolutions that some people (if they have not already made them) might like to consider.

UMD College Republicans: resolve to go a year without making any one group very angry and offended.

UMD College Democrats: resolve to spend the year trying to offend at least one group of people so maybe their ticket can win some offices.

Republicans and Democrats of the new(t) Congress: resolve to just get along so walking on the floors of the House and Senate doesn't feel like walking between Union and Confederate lines at the Battle of Antietam.

The UMD History Department: resolve to just try to get along so walking on the second floor of A. B. Anderson doesn't feel like walking between Union and Confederate lines at the battle of Antietam.

Vikings Coach Dennis Green: resolve not to take a Super-Bowl caliber team to the playoffs only to lose to (gulp) the Chicago Bears.

The Duluth City Council: resolve to think of something more interesting to talk about than sump pumps!

Chancellor Lawrence Ianni: resolve to control his temper as not to mar his last few months in office with another incident like the one that happened in the Clinton ticket line.

And finally, I, Zach Johns, the editor of this prestigious newspaper, resolve not to write lame editorials like this one any more.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Statesman staff an 'in crowd'

Dear Editor,

I feel that I must respond to what has gone on concerning the Statesman.

First, one comment that I make to Mr. Spearman is that no matter what leadership style that you use, you must have some structure. It is no reflection on you. This is a student publication, and a learning experience. No one can come in to the job, and know what to do. However, as you learn, you must adjust accordingly.

My second point is made to everyone who has worked, or is working on the staff. Even though this is a student publication, there must be some semblance of professionalism. Even if you don't like who you are working with, at least be professional with them. It appears to me that the Statesman staff is extremely lacking in this quality. I worked as a staff writer two years ago, and because of the lack of professionalism then, I have no desire to be connected with them ever again. It is an "in crowd," and to me, that is not professional.

I would recommend that the governing board of the Statesman take a serious look at the people in charge. Especially the professionalism.

Illegal immigrants breaking the law

Dear Editor,

I am writing in response to Julie Munger's opinion column in the December 15 issue of the Statesman. While reading Ms. Munger's column, I was infuriated by her attempt, which I have seen too many times in recent months, to make the honest, tax-paying, law-abiding citizens of the United States feel guilty for their efforts to do the right thing in a society which values the criminal's rights over those of their victims.

I would like to remind Ms. Munger of a couple of points: the first being that Proposition 187 is neither federal nor Minnesota law, it is California law. It is not merely a law which the state bureaucrats made to foster their racist ideals, but one which the majority of eligible and willing California citizens voted for. Republicans and Democrats alike. These California citizens were fed up with having their tax money going to people who willingly and illegally cross our nation's borders to exploit the freedoms which we have tried so hard to protect.

The second part is that these people who illegally cross our borders are — plain and simple — criminals. The defense that many of these criminals work very hard for a living is irrelevant. I am curious what would happen if I were pulled over for speeding and said, "But officer, I am enrolled in college full-time and have two jobs. Doesn't that give me the right to fracture a law or two?" I highly doubt it if I would get a reaction of sympathy. I do know that I would have to take responsibility for my actions, as should illegal immigrants.

For too long the illegal immigrants have been taking advantage of our nation's generosity which has been indifferent to the fact that they are criminals and should be treated as such. California voters have realized this impropriety and have taken action. I hope the rest of the nation will soon take the same bold steps California has taken with the passage of Proposition 187.

Be cautious of "second-class leaders"

By Jeff Hilgert
Guest Opinion Writer

When the country is going in the wrong direction, as many people feel, it becomes necessary to examine the leaders of that direction. There are two fields of vision possessed by intelligent leaders. The first is allied with a principled perspective and the second linked with a preservation orientation.

Before attempting influence and guidance (otherwise known as leadership), a person must first identify an issue they wish to change. A person must identify a problem before they can rightly enter into a position of leadership. We must question the motives of those who enter a position of influence and guidance before they themselves have formulated what they will struggle for.

The first field of vision found in true leaders is characterized by an empathy toward people experiencing an injustice and a desire to change that injustice. As a result a principle is formed. This principle guides the true leader in all of his or her actions. This principle, conceived from knowledge of and empathy for those whom justice is not being served, takes precedent over all actions the true leader will make.

The second field of vision found in other types of "leaders" is exemplified by priority of action devoted to maintaining the ability to lead. Power preservation comes first, regardless of what is just. Holding that power first and foremost in the minds of these second-class "leaders," it is impossible to be guided by principle. These second-class "leaders" are concealed from principle because their minds are consumed by controlling. I say this because control, which is a consequence of fear resulting from concern over losing power, is incompatible with principle.

"Political science teaches us how to play the game of second class 'leader.' It educates us on the maintenance of power."

Injustices occur when rights are violated. Principle is defined as a basic truth. In solving a violation of rights, true leaders employ truth to discover justice. In attempting to control so as to maintain power, second-class "leaders" employ coercion, deceit, deception and other tactics that hinder the discovery of truth. Truth (which leads to justice) cannot be found in an environment of falsehoods. Hence the second-class "leader" who is preoccupied with maintaining power will only seek to improve injustices when their resolution will result in the support of the leader's post. Those second-class "leaders" who desire at all cost power for power's sake are, therefore, blind to principle, blind to truth, blind to the violation of rights and blind to justice.

Proponents of second-class "leaders" will argue that their commander does indeed have an agenda, an agenda that is principled and just. I argue that their agenda, with justice or without, will change regardless of principle so long as their agenda will selfishly aid them in maintaining power. This, unfortunately, is the truth. Be skeptical of those who alter personal agendas to maintain power. They are without principle and do not currently possess the ability to know justice. Newt Gingrich, after failed attempts to gain a U.S. House seat as a Georgia liberal in 1974 and 1976, magically became a conservative. James Gay, a West Georgia College professor and former colleague of Gingrich, was quoted in the New York Times as saying, "I'm not certain whether he has principles. He reads polls a lot and adjusts to them."

How does one become a second-class "leader?" First, you must know the game. You must know how to manipulate personal relationships so as to profit yourself. You must know the process, the rules, the procedures. But most importantly, you must be best friends with power and be willing to sacrifice principle to achieve it.

True leaders, on the other hand, reject coercion, deceit, deception and lies. They strive for truth in all circumstances. They seek justice through knowledge of the truth and thus realization of unjust circumstances. But most importantly, true leaders are never a friend to power when it requires they forsake principle to achieve it.

I am a political science major. Political science teaches us how to play the game of a second-class "leader." It educates us on the maintenance of power.

As a new millennium approaches, the University of Minnesota-Duluth, in order to train and educate true leaders and to promote justice and principle, should refocus the department of political science. First, rename the major to either Social Activism, Social Action, Social Justice or the like. This symbolic name change would alter future orientations of incoming students away from second class leadership toward achieving true leadership. The name "political science" is analogous with coercion, control and power maintenance. Far too often do I hear, "Jeff, what does President Clinton need to do to get elected again?" I ask here, who cares? Instead we should ask, "Are the president's actions working toward justice for all?" Second, teach us how to see the injustice first, and then how to act toward its elimination. Yes, we must understand our system, but not before we understand the issues. Instruct us first on every inequality and prejudice the world has known. If control and power for power's sake is taught as the norm, we risk internalizing control as acceptable, which makes us blind to the truth and ultimately unable to seek true leadership. If ever participating in the political process requires that we forsake principle to maintain power, then we should want no part of it. Principle, justice and truth must come first, coercion, deceit and deception never. These are the true leaders UMD should be creating.

A lofty order indeed, but I question the motives of those who are allied with deception and compete against what is right.

Hilgert is a political science major from Olivia.

Martin presents her qualifications in final forum

By Jesse White
News Editor

On Thursday, December 22, the final candidate for the position of chancellor spoke at UMD.

Kathryn Martin, the current Dean of the College of Fine and Applied Arts at the University of Illinois, presented her qualifications for chancellor in a convincing manner.

Martin said she was never really sure about becoming a chancellor. "If I did have the opportunity I wouldn't do it unless it was a university the size of the one I'm in now."

As the Dean of Fine and Applied Arts at the University of Illinois, Martin heads seven different academic units with 3,000 majors, 280 faculty members and 140 support staff. Martin has also been a Dean of Fine and Performing Arts at Wayne State University in Michigan and a Dean at the University of Montana.

Martin feels that her experience has shown her many things that would be of benefit if she were hired as chancellor. "I've seen a lot of experiences of how-to's and how-not-to's. I've seen enough to do a pretty good job."

If hired as chancellor, Martin commented that she would do as much consulting as she can to make proper decisions, and that she would like to see some changes in UMD's relationship with central administration. "I would do something about requests that come one day and are supposed to get solved the next."

The question and answer session of the forum proved to be similar to the other four forums, and Martin provided the audience with some concrete answers.

When asked about her thoughts on diversity issues such as homosexual equality, Martin said she would "treat all cultural diversity to the extent of the law." She went on to add that she would keep diversity needs on the front burner but not at the expense of quality.

Martin outlined four objectives that she would have if she became chancellor. First of all, she said she would take a close look at planning efforts, referring to U2000. "The documents are somewhat disjointed; it may need to be rethought." She also mentioned that it might not be prudent to follow a vision laid out by the Twin Cities. "UMD needs to look at themselves," she said.

Secondly, Martin feels that UMD needs to frequently look at the required core and determine how often it's examined and who looks at it.

Thirdly, Martin feels UMD needs to establish a local advisory committee. She suggested a local group that in a special way is connected to this university.

Working with central administration is another of Martin's goals. She was not sure how she would change things, but that "something needs to be done."

Martin also stressed the importance of information technology, saying that it is extremely important and that, "we certainly better think about the library in the same way."

Martin feels that research is an important part of the faculty situation at this university. "Sponsored research is important, but it's hard to get." She went on to say she feels teaching quality is influenced by the quality of research. "Promotion and tenure needs to be set up to support the different talents."

Leadership style is where Martin's philosophy shined. When asked if she was more of a leader or a manager Martin said, "Anyone in administration is sometimes a leader and sometimes a manager."

"Leadership is more visionary - more controversial. Change is controversial. I see myself as willing to be an agent of change when necessary."

As a leader, Martin stressed setting high goals, having a sense of humor and being optimistic. "If you set ideas high enough you come closer than if you never set them at all."

Martin is best choice for chancellor

By Jesse White
News Editor

After a whirlwind three weeks, the field of five candidates for chancellor will be narrowed to one.

After observing the five candidates at their open forums and studying their resumes, they were rated on a number of different areas. In my opinion, Kathryn Martin, the final candidate to visit UMD, was the best. She presented her open forum answers with a certain confidence that the other candidates seemed to be lacking. She also seemed experienced and grounded in common sense.

All of the candidates for chancellor were exceptional and no matter who the committee chooses, I believe any one of the individuals would make a good chancellor. However, the following three individuals stood out above the rest: Kathryn Martin, Sharon Wallace and Patrick McDonough.

The following is an assessment of a couple of strengths and weaknesses of the chancellor candidates as determined by the Statesman:

Kathryn Martin strengths: Confident, direct, realistic, sincere and intelligent. Martin's comments about U2000 and her thoughts on information technology and the library showed she is prepared to tackle some difficult issues.

Martin's leadership style, "Leadership is visionary," and her seemingly strong convictions could fulfill a void that has existed in the chancellor's office in recent years.

"I've seen a lot of experiences of how-to's and how-not-to's. I've seen enough to do a pretty good job."
--Kathryn Martin
Chancellor candidate

Martin's weaknesses: Although she talked about changing the relationship between the UMD campus and central administration, she seemed a little vague on what those changes would be. Also, she has never held a position higher than Dean.

Sharon Wallace strengths: Confident, intelligent, qualified, and creative. Wallace seemed informed about issues at UMD such as the library and the relationship with central administration. She also had a clear understanding of the chancellor's role at UMD, in the community, and within the entire university system.

Her questions to the audience about their concerns showed a sincere interest in working with others for a common goal.

Wallace's weaknesses: Wallace rode the fence on a number of answers that could have had a strong answer. This was the only real difference between Martin and Wallace. Furthermore, many of her answers were vague.

Patrick McDonough strengths: Confident, intelligent, familiar, and experienced. McDonough is probably the most experienced applicant of the five. He is also the most familiar with the university system, having worked at UMD. McDonough also seemed very approachable and friendly and seemed genuinely excited about the opportunity to become chancellor here.

McDonough weaknesses: McDonough's management style was weak compared to Martin and Wallace. He seems content with the idea that he is just a "lever that others would use to get things done." McDonough also seemed naive about the relationship between UMD and the Twin Cities.

Allen Glenn strengths: Intelligent, aware of the issues. Glenn provided strong answers in the areas of collegiality and how it relates to the chancellor position and his view of liberal arts and its role.

Glenn's weaknesses: Glenn is one of the least experienced of the bunch. His answers were also very vague and complacent. It seemed that Glenn was more interested in giving the right answer and not in genuine change.

Marilyn Boxer: Familiarity. Boxer's strongest asset is the fact that she worked in a university system similar to

When asked about diversity and political correctness Glenn replied, "We need to be ready and willing to confront these issues."

UMD's in California. She also has a clear vision of the importance of liberal arts.

Boxer weaknesses: Boxer is qualified and competent, but compared to the other candidates her resume is weak. Her answers were vague and she did not give clear objectives if she were to become chancellor.

It is my opinion that any of the top three candidates, Martin, Wallace or McDonough would make a fine chancellor. Martin and Wallace were, however, clearly ahead of the rest. Both Martin and Wallace would breath some new life into UMD and work hard for change.

Both candidates also seemed very confident, concise, very approachable and rational.

Editor's note: The opinions in this article are those of STATESMAN News Editor Jesse White and not necessarily the opinions of the STATESMAN staff, the faculty, student body, or current administration.

ARTS & ENTERTAINMENT

The cast of Guys and Dolls in a past performance.

Guys & Dolls at the DECC

By Tim Galatowitsch
Staff Writer

The Duluth/Superior Entertainment League is pleased to present Guys and Dolls, the Broadway sensation and winner of four 1992 Tony Awards, for one DECC performance only, Tuesday, January 17 at 7:30 p.m.

— PREVIEW —

Guys and Dolls was adapted from a Damon Runyon short story entitled "The Idyll of Miss Sarah Brown." Its focus is on New York's Times Square, circa 1950. Within this locale you can find many colorful characters, including Sky Masterson, that "bet on anything" gambler; Nathan Detroit, the organizer of the "oldest established permanent floating crap game in New York"; Miss Adelaide, the "main attraction" at the Hot Box nightclub; and Miss Sarah Brown, of the "Save-a-Soul" mission.

Besides these larger-than-life characters, Guys and Dolls boasts a memorable music score designed by Frank Loesser, Jo Swerling and Abe Burrows. Within this score reside songs such as "Sit Down You're Rocking the Boat," "I've Never Been In Love Before,"

"Luck Be a Lady," "If I were a Bell," and the always timeless and unforgettable "A Bushel and a Peck."

Guys and Dolls has enjoyed quite a favorable performance history since its first run on Broadway over 40 years ago. That initial production took place in 1950. It ran for 1,194 performances at the historic 46th Street Theatre in New York. The cast included such names as Robert Alda, Vivian Blaine, Isabel Bigley, Sam Levene, and Stubby Kaye. A memorable 1955 film version of Guys and Dolls starred Frank Sinatra, Marlon Brando, Vivian Blaine, and Jean Simmons.

Besides the four Tony Awards mentioned earlier, seven Desk Drama Awards and three Outer Critics Circle Awards can also be added to the list of Guys and Dolls's accomplishments.

Tickets for this single performance of Guys and Dolls are priced at $33, $27, $21, and $16, according to proximity of the DECC Theatre stage. Tickets are selling fast, and the Duluth/Superior Entertainment League encourages you to act quickly if interested in this performance.

UMD students, take note!

Pictured above are the rock-n-rolling members of UMD's very own band Spigot. From left to right: Dan Baggenstoss, plays drums, Steve Oakes, on bass, Dan Zschokke, lead vocals, and Darrell Baggenstoss on guitar. The group will be releasing a tape of their music soon. Look for it. They will be performing Saturday, January 14, as part of KUMD Band Jam. Other bands include, Puddle Wonderful, The Fromundas, and Swivelhead. Cost is $3 students and $4 general. Tickets can be bought at the door. The festivities begin at 6 p.m. Look for a review of the "big band blowout" in the January 19th issue of The Statesman.

"Student Rush" tickets, if any left available, can be purchased for $7 one hour before the performance. This means any ticket not sold as of 6:30 p.m. on January 17, no matter the original price, just $7!

Guys and Dolls is only the first in a string of Broadway musicals that the Duluth/Superior Entertainment League will head under its 1995 "Best of Broadway" billing. The three other DECC performances will include Oliver! on Thursday February 16, The Secret Garden Sunday March 12, and Jesus Christ, Superstar Tuesday and Wednesday April 18 and 19. A package deal is being offered for tickets to all 4 performances, which can save you as much as 15 percent on ticket prices.

For more information on

Guys and Dolls, or the Duluth/Superior Entertainment League's "Best of Broadway" mini-series, contact them at 722-2000, or (800) 622-2003.

The Duluth Superior Entertainment League Office is located at 321 West Superior Street, "On The Skywalk", just above Duluth Camera Exchange in Downtown Duluth.

Writer will appear at Depot

By Amy Bowman
Staff Writer

This upcoming weekend, the Lake Superior Writers' Series will present two appearances by Margot Fortunato Galt. This guest author holds a Ph.D. in American Studies from the University of Minnesota, and her poetry is well known throughout the state.

PREVIEW

Her poetry has appeared in five anthologies, two of which are Looking For Home: Women Write about Exile (Milkweed editions, 1992) and The Poet in the Painter's House (Milkweed editions, 1984). Her writings and essays have been widely published in regional magazines and she has taught through the Writers-in-the-schools program for COMPAS for 15 years. She serves on the Master of Education faculty at Hamline University, St. Paul, and has earned a 1993-94 travel grant from the Center for Arts Criticism to study "Human Scale in Public Places." Her latest work is a book entitled Up to the Plate, a story of The All-American Girls Professional Baseball League, which is geared toward younger readers and will be published by Lerner this winter.

Margot Galt's first appearance will be at 7 p.m. Friday, Jan. 20, in the Ruth Maney Room of The Depot. Join her on Friday when she will give a free presentation, reading from three works: The Story in History: Writing Your Way into the American Experience (Teachers and Writers Collaborative, 1992); The Mother Daughter Trip, and selections from her recently published chapbook of poetry The Country's Way With Rain (Kutenai Press, 1994). The reading will be followed by a book sale and a signing hosted by Northern Lights Books & Gifts. Refreshments will be served.

From 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Saturday, Jan. 21, Galt will conduct a workshop that will allow writers and teachers of creative writing or history to access American history from the view point of the imaginative writer. It is called The Story in History and will be a great opportunity for writers to interact with Margot Galt, who in her own words states, "Granted, history contains real events and people, dates and places, even physical evidence...Yet, like fiction and poetry, history changes in perspective, tone, texture, detail, and language depending on who is telling it...The connections between telling history and telling a story can thus be used to enhance the writing of each. When interpreted with the techniques of creative writing, history takes on the vibrancy of lived experience." The cost of the workshop is $16. Call 218-727-8025 to register.

Many interesting aspects make Moore & Douglas film intriguing

By Kyle McDonough
Staff Writer

Over Christmas break one of the many wonderfully interesting things a person can do is go to a movie (really inventive, I know). When I go to a movie, I want to be entertained. Whether I'm laughing, intrigued, or sad throughout the movie makes or breaks it for me.

Disclosure was that kind of movie. It kept me piecing the puzzle together the entire time. This movie had it all: sex, violence, conspiracy, controversy, a driving plot and great acting to boot.

Disclosure stars Michael Douglas and Demi Moore. Douglas plays a married, with children, executive for a computer company who has just received a promotion. Unfortunately for him, a young, seductive, and highly manipulative female executive (Moore) steals Douglas' job. Oh, just another power war among office executives you say. Well, let's try a little sexual harassment to spice things up.

Overdone, you say? Well, how about if the woman is harassing the man? Whew. There is enough stress in this movie to send you into therapy. If that isn't enough to make you want to see this movie, how about a remarkable performance by Donald Sutherland as the money-driven company president. This movie made me laugh and at the same time want to pull out my hair trying to guess what would happen next. If you're looking to see a movie that you have to wear a seat-belt during, grab a box of Ju-Ju Fruits and go see Disclosure.

Twenty five years later, AMC still going strong

It's a fond look back at past and present as All My Children celebrates 25 years at the top

By Jerry Paquette
A&E Editor

The legacy began 25 years ago on January 5, 1970. Most UMD students were not born at that time, but the magic has endured over the years to keep old and new fans alike.

Pine Valley, home of the Martins, Kanes, Tylers and Wallingfords, is also home to sin and scandal, sex and intrigue, gossip and murder. All of these aspects have made All My Children one of the all-time, most watched daytime soap operas of them all.

Which other program has spawned so much recent publicity? There is a brand new AMC 25-year family album, a variety of AMC home videos, including one entitled "All About Erica" and an upcoming prime time special at 7 p.m. Sunday, January 15 on ABC hosted by Carol Burnett.

What is the magic that has held the show together for all of these years? The answer is simple. A first rate cast, fantastic, if not at times improbable, story lines, and characters that come right off the screen into your living room.

When speaking of AMC characters, creator Agnes Nixon is responsible for some of the most memorable TV characters in the world of daytime television.

By far, the one AMC character who will go down in history is Erica Kane. Played by Susan Lucci, since day one of the show, Lucci has appeared in 5,185 of the 6,450 episodes that have been produced. She is the much loved, much hated, much marrying lady who has done about everything humanly possible. She was a top model, ran her own disco, was the editor of a fashion magazine, ran a restaurant called the Chateau, headed her own line of cosmetics, stood trial for murder twice, was kidnapped, was in plane crashes, fended off the attack of an angry grizzly bear, stood up to her many enemies, and oh yes, slept with or married most of the men in Pine Valley. At present, Erica has marched down the aisle a grand total of nine times, with six different men. See if you can remember them all: Jeff Martin, Phillip Brent, Tom Cudahay, Adam Chandler, Travis Montgomery, and Dimitri Marick.

Erica has done more in her life than most normal humans could even imagine. She is the one character who just says it as it is, and that's what the audience seems to love. "He is a man, and I am Erica Kane. Need I say more?" "You can't keep a Kane woman down for long," and my personal favorite, "Let me just warn you, Erica Kane takes no prisoners." These are just some classic Kane lines.

Along with Erica, there are many more Pine Valley residents who deserve special recognition. Almost as conniving as Erica, but much more ruthless, would have to be Adam Chandler, played by David Canary. Since the mid 1980s, Adam has broken hearts, stolen corporations, had one of his many wives committed to an asylum, married and divorced five women, was responsible for the premature death of his infant daughter, and probably has fathered more illegitimate children in the history of daytime TV. Whenever his story line lags, surprise, up pops another child he fathered many years ago. Canary, unlike Lucci, has been rewarded four times for his work with Emmy awards. Lucci has been nominated 14 times, without a single win.

When speaking of one character who always gives Erica a run for her money, we would have to mention Brooke English, played by Julia Barr. Barr has been with AMC since 1976, and always butts heads with Kane over men, career dilemmas, and in everyday life. I don't think any two women have had more confrontations, or shared the same husbands more than Brooke and Erica.

Journalist Brooke also has had her fair share of marriages, and personal problems. She was sent to jail for not revealing her sources in a news story, lost her beloved daughter in a hit and run accident, suffered a tubal pregnancy, nearly lost her mind, and at the present seems to be the one character with the most men problems in Pine Valley.

Susan Lucci as the best-loved daytime diva herself, Erica Kane. Lucci has made a career out of the "Erica" image. Perhaps no other character is better known than Erica.

Tad Martin and Dixie are also two very popular characters. After many trials and tribulations, Tad and Dixie seem to be content and happy in their third marriage to each other. But hey, this is a soap, not everything can be rosy forever.

At present, it looks as if Kendall Hart, Erica's illegitimate daughter from a rape, is giving her dear mother a run for her money in the bitch department. In her first couple of months in town, Kendall lied, cheated, convinced her mother that her husband raped her, and drove Erica to stab her own husband, then Kendall ended up in jail for perjury. Who knows what lies ahead for her? More deception, I presume.

Other favorite town folks are the dear Martins, Dr. Joe and Nurse Ruth. They are the outstanding members in the community. And Phoebe Tyler Wallingford, the grand dame of Pine Valley who has done her fair share of scheming, deceiving, drinking and more drinking.

Villains and vixens run wild in Pine Valley, in all shapes and sizes. The sleazier the character, the more popular they are. No one fit that bill better than Billy Clyde Tuggle, pimp, con-man and all around puke. Other memorable "naughty" characters would include rapist Ray Gardner, murderess Janet Green, gigolo, pimp, extortionist, Zach Grayson, the mother-in-law from hell, Helga Voynitzeva, drug queen Peg English, and many, many more.

Over the years AMC has been the first daytime soap to tackle many never before heard of subjects on TV. Here are just a sample of a few memorable storylines: the first legal abortion in the early 1970s, the issue of dealing with the birth of a mentally retarded baby, and its subsequent death from Sudden Infant Death Syndrome, and teenage prostitution. In 1974, viewers witnessed the on-screen recovery of a character's real life face lift. That was a medical first for television. There was also the first open lesbian character in daytime history, and the critically acclaimed AIDS story line in the late 1980s.

As to what the future holds for AMC, one thing is for sure, the show will continue to thrive and only get bigger and better as more and more people all over the world become addicted to the soap that is always on the "cutting edge" of melodramatic television.

Big talent in Little Women

Ryder headlines a strong cast with much Oscar potential

By Jerry Paquette
A&E Editor

Louisa May Alcott's classic novel Little Women was brought back to life in time for the 1994 holiday season. This is the third big screen adaptation of the 18th century novel which depicts the lives of the March family.

lower class on the social register.

The character Amy is played by two actresses. Being the youngest sister, Amy changes the most physically. As a youngster, Interview with a Vampire's Kirstin Dunst takes on the role. She is excellent in displaying the mean streak that Amy has.

ly, and eventually lost her life after caring for the sickly children from the same family. Danes brought a waif-like approach to the role. Physically she looked as if her health actually failed throughout the film. If young Danes doesn't find life after My So Called Life, her agent should have their head examined.

In supporting roles, Susan Sarandon steps down from her leading lady status to play the matriarchal Marmee, the mother of the four. Eric Stoltz is tutor John Brookes, and Mary Wickes is old ornery, but caring, Aunt March.

Fans of the novel will be pleased to see that this version is the most true to text of all of them. Director Gillian Armstrong chose to leave many poignant and significant scenes that the 1933 and 1949 versions out. The earlier versions were more "glamorous," but Armstrong's cast made up for the non "glamour" feel.

Recently, much has been written about this film being a "womens" picture, but I have to strongly disagree. I don't believe that any film is just for one sex or the other. Men and women alike can learn a great deal about good human qualities - caring and a true family feeling - by watching Little Women.

A fine cast, great director, a classic score and unforgettable, authentic scenery defiantly guarantees Little Women a place in the rankings of one of the classic films of 1995.

As the grown Amy, Samantha Mathis was rather blah. She is a beautiful young woman, and she was on the screen, acting, and that's about it. I can't think of one aspect of Mathis's performance that was memorable.

In a standout performance, Clare Danes from My So Called Life moved many in the audience to tears with her portrayal of the fragile, sickly Beth. Beth, who sacrificed her own breakfast for a poor fami-

Winona Ryder stars as Jo, short for Josephine. She is the second oldest daughter, and the leader of the four. Jo is the perfect example of a tomboy. She would rather yell at the neighbor boy from across the yard and play in the snow than worry about her appearance or manners.

Ryder brings the vivid character to life with much strength. By far this is Ryder's most demanding acting role.

Trina Alvarado, best known for her role in the Bette Midler film Stella takes on the role as Meg, the oldest. Meg is concerned with how people view her and her sisters. She attends many social events and coming-out parties where she must wear a homemade dress. The shame on her face is evident enough so that one girl takes Meg and lets her wear one of her nice, fancy dresses.

Due to the Civil War and Mr. March having to be away, the once wealthy family is reduced to being considered

I've been thinking...

Pamela Beaudry

The coming of a new year inspires everyone to set new goals and make resolutions. Obviously, nobody seems to stick to their resolutions longer than a month or fast food restaurants would go out of business and everyone would be ten pounds thinner.

This year, instead of making resolutions I would not fulfill anyway, I made a wish list of things I want to see happen in 1995.

*I wish my $54 blue decal parking permit would get me a parking spot after 8 a.m. and before 2 p.m.

*I wish toilet bowl cleaner commercials would stop demonstrating the strength of their product on real toilet scum. This is very upsetting when I'm eating. Other products don't use this type of advertisement. Thank goodness, especially with the swarms of diaper, tampon, and condom ads on television and in magazines.

*I wish the winning power ball numbers were: 15 04 24 26 21 power ball: 09

*I wish commercial programming would stop their sad attempts at trying to make their programs look like real television shows. We are not that stupid. We know they're fake.

*I wish Sunday night television would improve.

*I wish Michael Douglas would stop making those cheesy sex movies. He is getting too old and unattractive to do it. His butt is too flabby anyways.

*I wish the writers of Days of Our Lives would take Satan out of Marlena and poor sick Father Francis and send him (green eyes and all) out of Salem.

*I wish the Prize Patrol would be on my front steps January 29th.

*I wish the campus police would stop giving me parking tickets and the city of Duluth would stop trying to make me pay them.

*I wish Cheers would come back on the air.

*I wish Nicholas Cage would be the 1995 Man of the Year. After all, he is one of the best actors on the big screen.

*I wish when Greg Kinear didn't have time to host Talk Soup, John Hansen wouldn't fill his shoes.

*I wish the bathrooms at UMD would get ventilation so they weren't so hot and smelly.

*I wish people who used those hot, smelly bathrooms wouldn't be afraid to flush the toilet.

*I wish students at UMD would stop thinking it's cool too hang out in front of the bookstore even though the window ledge is no longer there. All you are doing is causing a traffic jam.

*I wish guys would quit wearing sweat pants up to their knees with little bootie socks and white tennis shoes.

*I wish people would walk on the right side of the stairs like we've been taught since we were little.

*I wish people would stop saying, "I know something, but I can't tell you what it is."

*I wish Minnesota would drop the law about not printing Minnesota drink prices. It would be so much easier than figuring out 75% off and the cost of a lottery ticket.

*I wish UMD would get Pepsi machines.

*I wish I would never get stuck driving behind a DTA again.

*I wish I could go to college without going to class.

*I wish Dead Eye Dick, a new band from the South, would become as big as Green Day in 1995.

*I wish Santa Claus was real and Newt Gingrich wasn't.

*I wish the floors of UMD weren't covered with white chalky stuff. What is that stuff anyway?

*I wish political correctness would go out of style and everyone would just call each other "dude" and "chic".

*I wish I knew why Chancellor Ianni was in the 1995 UMD wrestling poster. And why isn't he shirtless?

Hopefully these wishes will come true, but I doubt it. I hope everyone has an excellent new year and all your wishes come true.

Beaudry is a communication major, journalism and political science minor from Elk River, whose one last wish is to find a really cool job that pays well.

Einstein is a matchmaker?

Matthau, Ryan and Robbins team up in romantic-comedy I.Q.

By Ron Hustvedt
Staff Writer

I think I heard somewhere that Albert Einstein's dying words were "I wish I'd had more fun." Well, if old Al (that is Mr. Einstein to you) were still around today, he could've had some fun at the movies seeing I.Q.

-REVIEW-

Mr. Einstein will have to settle for the next best thing: having Walter Matthau portray him in the witty comedy/romance I.Q. Let me just say that Matthau does a spectacular job of Einstein. He is a cuddly old man type, and you can't help but to love him and his big brain.

Fred Schepisi, the director of I.Q., specializes in witty comedy/romance type movies. A former movie of his, Roxanne, has a similar cyrano-like plot. If that wasn't enough to make a good comedy/romance, wait till you hear this: Meg Ryan plays Einstein's niece and is one of the main characters. I'm sure director Schepisi had Ryan in mind considering her past success in movies like Sleepless In Seattle, and When Harry Met Sally.

The movie takes place in 1955 in Princeton, New Jersey, the old stomping grounds of Einstein. This movie is about how the main brain (Einstein) attempts to spark a relationship between his niece Catherine (Meg Ryan) and Ed (Tim Robbins). Catherine is a beautiful but stressed grad student at Princeton; she has the same genius brain as her uncle. Ed is a handsome young auto mechanic who has an interest in science, but has learned all he knows from comic books and science fiction.

The two meet when Catherine and her fiancée, a stuffy snobby Brit, have car troubles and just happen to pull into Ed's garage. Immediately we see a spark between the two. While Ed proclaims his love for her to his grease monkey friends, Catherine doesn't quite realize the significance of the meeting, but she senses something.

She ends up (accidentally (?) leaving her watch at the garage. Ed, the proverbial nice-guy, returns it to the address she left for the repair order. When Ed goes to return the watch, the door is not answered by a young, beautiful woman; an old white-haired man answers instead. Ed and Einstein immediately become friends. Ed tells Einstein of his interest in Catherine and Al offers to help him out. The friendship is real, but is not without ulterior motives; Ed hopes that Einstein will help him become closer to Catherine, while Einstein sees Ed as an experiment of sorts. Here is where the movie starts to take off.

Einstein's friends are several other great scholars who all pal around the streets of Princeton philosophizing about the various aspects of life. All these guys have spent most of their lives in front of chalkboards figuring out equations, so their experiences in the real world are spent analyzing it. This is the primary reason they decide to help out Ed with Catherine.

Einstein presents his friends the case of Catherine and Ed as an experiment to be conducted by him and his cronies. Einstein knows that Catherine believes in love at first brain wave, so they all come up with a brilliant plan. If they want Catherine to fall in love with Ed, she must love his brain over all other things. This great plan of theirs is to have Ed give a seminar on his theory of cold fusion.

Catherine sure enough begins to fall for Ed; she is obviously impressed by his sudden intelligence, but at the same time is very suspect. Her fiancée is also sensing this slipping away of Catherine, so he tries to prove Ed's theory wrong. He eventually does, but I won't tell you how, and I won't tell you how it all comes about because that entails most of the movie.

I thought that I.Q. was a good film, a very good date film. Take your girlfriend or boyfriend, or just a bunch of friends to this movie and I guarantee that you'll have a good time. One problem I had with the film was it lacked the intensity and seriousness of past romance/comedies like Sleepless In Seattle, and When Harry Met Sally.

UMD came away with an 80-62 victory in the NSIC opener on Saturday at Romano Gymnasium. ## 'Dogs play sweet music at home; A different tune on the road

By Pete Phillips
Staff Writer

The UMD men's basketball team had a successful break as they ousted Mount Senario and Winona State at home and dropped two tough road losses down in Texas.

The losses came at the hands of Texas A&M-Kingsville and Division I opponent Texas-Pan American to end up 9-5 so far this season.

Overall, considering the level of competition and the rigors of the road, it was a joyous Christmas for the Bulldogs.

The action started off at home on December 22 as the seven-man team of Mount Senario rolled into the Romano Gymnasium. The overall scenario for this game was "Bulldogs Trounce." The beleaguered lineup of the Fighting Saints could not conger up enough divine intervention and fell to the 'Dogs 77-48.

With only seven men on the opposing lineup, UMD head coach Dale Race forced an uncharacteristic up-tempo game and put a lot of pressure on the ball.

"They were a pretty good team and they played well," Race commented on the win. "In the end, we really wore them down."

The Saints held the game close for the first half, but the deep bench of the Bulldogs proved to be the difference. At the end of the game, the 'Dogs could score at will and had the game in hand to cruise to the victory.

As break got started, the Bulldogs put on their traveling boots and hit the road to Texas. Texas A&M-Kingsville was first on the docket and the 'Dogs let it slip away in the final eight minutes and fell 85-68. With the score 59-57 with eight minutes left in the second half, Kingsville put on a run and the foul troubled Bulldogs could not pull it out.

"We got in severe foul trouble and that was the biggest factor of the game for us," Race pointed out.

"They are 9-2 and pressed us the entire game," Race said. "We played well and lost to a good team."

Pat Grabner led the 'Dogs by pounding the paint for 22 points, while Jake Voit added 14.

Coach Race said, "Grabner played a tremendous game, his best as a Bulldog."

Next up for the Bulldogs on the lone road trip was Texas-Pan American. Defense was the theme for both teams as this one also flittered out of sight in a 53-29 tractor pull.

The Broncos set a school record for fewest points allowed and the Bulldogs set a few records of their own like lowest field goal percentage at 22 percent, fewest points scored since Feb. 18, 1952, as well as, fewest points by a UMD squad under the helm of Dale Race.

Although noteworthy, these statistics do not mean all that much as the 'Dogs played valiantly against a good Division I team.

"We played with a great deal of effort and did a great job on defense and held them to 53," Race remarked. "Our problem was that we could not shoot the ball. We got open and missed the easy shot and it just snowballed on us," Race goes on to add.

"If we were to drop three or more shots each half the game would have shaped up to be very competitive," Race added.

Race felt that the trip was an education to the players on and off the court.

"We were together for five days, that's great for team unity and cohesiveness. We had a great time," Race said. "Overall, it was a great trip on and off the court as we gained valuable experience in both."

The Bulldogs returned home on Saturday to play their first conference game of the year, besting Winona State 68-50. This was a huge win for the 'Dogs and a great way to start Northern Sun Intercollegiate Conference play.

"It was a great win for us to go 1-0 in conference play," Race said. "We played well and got a great effort out of everybody."

Race went to his bench and used it prolifically and wore down the Warriors with hounding defense, a benchmark of the Bulldogs.

The UMD women's basketball team sure had a nice visit from Santa Claus over Christmas break as they defeated Winona State University 80-62. Texas A&M-Kingsville 63-60, and they fell short by one point to Wayland University 63-62.

UMD opened their Northern Sun Intercollegiate Conference play last Saturday at home against Winona State. The Bulldogs started strong, stayed strong and ended strong. The Dogs outscored the Warriors 40-20 in the first half.

In the second half, UMD kept Winona out of reach as the Bulldogs scored 40 more points, out-rebounded them 30-21 and forced Winona to turn the ball over 31 times in a total game effort.

Jodi Ierino led the Bulldogs against Winona, scoring 22 points and bringing down 10 rebounds. Teammate Sara Belanger contributed 14 points, and four rebounds. Kristi Duncan added 10 points, six rebounds and seven assists.

UMD traveled to Honolulu, Hawaii to face A&M-Kingsville, and Wayland University in the Hawaii Five 'O Five Classic.

UMD almost fell short in the first game of the tournament against Texas A&M-Kingsville. At halftime, the Bulldogs were down 31-29. In the second half, Duluth came back and outscored A&M 34-29 and squeezed by.

Ierino led the Bulldogs with 22 points and 12 rebounds. Kolette Kytonen added 14 points and brought down four rebounds. Duncan and Sadie Suomala had six points apiece.

Wrestlers host UM-Morris on Friday

The UMD wrestling team started out the new year on a good note with a seventh place finish at the North Country Invitational including Tom Cardinal taking the 126 pound weight class.

Cardinal led a Bulldog attack of four place finishers for a seventh place finish with 53 team points. Moorhead State won the tournament with 142 points, followed by Itasca Community College, St. John's, St. Cloud, Northern State, and Augsburg.

"We wrestled good in some spots and not-so-good in others," Coach Neil Ladsten said. "I was very impressed with the job done by the lower weights."

Cardinal improved to 11-3 on the season with two pins and an overtime victory in the championship match. Cardinal started the tournament out with a third-period pin over St. Thomas' K.K. Muni-soumang. Cardinal got another third-period pin in the semi-finals.

UW-River Falls' Keith Jackson had already defeated Cardinal earlier this season and as luck would have it, Jackson would also be in the championship match.

Cardinal led 4-0 after two periods and looked to be in good shape to take the 126-pound title. However, Jackson came back with a reversal and takedown in the third period to tie the match at 4-4. Cardinal would not let this match slip away with a takedown in the overtime session for the 6-4 decision.

"Cardinal won his first tournament of the year, which was nice. He also avenged an earlier loss to the River Falls kid, so you always like to see that," Ladsten said.

Bulldogs' Adam Steege made a good impression in his first action of the season with a fourth place finish at 142 pounds. Steege won his first three matches by scores of 7-2, 11-2 and 4-2 to advance into the semi-finals. Steege lost 3-1 in the semis, before winning his fifth match of the day and advancing into the third place match against Augsburg's Jamie Larkin. Steege had already defeated Larkin 4-2 in the quarter-finals, however, Larkin would prevail 8-4 in this match.

"Steege had a real nice tourney for this being his first outing," Ladsten said.

The Bulldogs would not be done at 142 pounds as Amir Abdelwahed came away with a 3-2 record for a fifth place finish. Abdelwahed edged out a 3-1 decision over Augsburg's Andy Wichman in his first match and quickly got a first-period pin in his second match. In the semi-finals, Itasca Community College's Tom Riche dropped Abdelwahed 18-12 in a slugfest. Abdelwahed then lost 4-2 to Larkin to drop into the fifth place match, where he decisioned

St. John's Andy Pond 8-2.

"Amir had a fine performance, making it into the semis before losing to the eventual champion," Ladsten said. "The 142 weight class was probably the toughest group there. It was loaded full of talent."

Sean McAuliffe also placed at the North Country Invitational with a 3-2 record in the 150 pound weight group. McAuliffe took a 5-2 decision in his first match and worked a second-period pin in his second match. McAuliffe lost 12-2 to drop into the loser's bracket and advanced into the third-place match with a 30 second pin. Northern State's Matt Skattum dropped McAuliffe into a fourth-place finish with a 5-2 decision.

"McAuliffe still placed despite being sick and not looking all that sharp," Ladsten added. "(John) Kiesling looked better. He did some encouraging things although he didn't place."

The Bulldogs will host UM-Morris in Northern Sun Intercollegiate Conference action on Friday at 7 p.m. in Romano Gymnasium.

"That should be a pretty interesting match. Haven't seen much of them this year, but every match will be a tough one for us," Ladsten said. "Out of all the conference schools, we probably have the best chance of beating them."

The wrestling team would also like to congratulate Coach Neil Ladsten on his engagement over the Holiday Break.

with 19 points. Freshman Yusuf Abdullah came off the bench and nailed 13 points including five-of-six free-throws down the stretch. But the real key of the game was the entire team playing well and well together.

The next six weeks will be the proving ground for the Bulldogs as the conference schedule winds down. Coach Race is confident that they will be contenders for the conference title if they continue to play well and control the tempo. In Coach Race's words, he simply says, "We have to PLAY."

The Bulldogs played at Moorhead State late Wednesday night, however, the results were not available at the time of press. The 'Dogs come home to host Northern State on Saturday at 3 p.m. at Romano Gymnasium.

the Bulldogs were tied at half-time 36-36, but they just couldn't hang on as they lost 63-62 in the total game effort.

UMD had three Bulldogs in double figures and once again Jerino led the Bulldogs with 19 points and nine rebounds. Wendy Hansen had 12 points, six rebounds and Kytönen added 10.

The Bulldogs are 6-6 overall and 1-0 in the Northern Sun Intercollegiate Conference. Last night, UMD traveled to Moorhead to face Moorhead State but the game was not completed before this issue of the Statesman went to press. The Bulldogs will also host Northern State Saturday at 1 p.m.

Tobin Talk

Jason Tobin

Hangovers can do wonders. Make our stomach do flips all morning. Make every food except dry toast and crackers look disgusting. Provide us with that all-too-familiar pounding headache that we've all come to know and love. And finally, bring us to the ultimate conclusion that we won't drink ever again, or at least not until the next time we drink.

Me and every other partying fool woke up on New Year's Day wondering what the license plate of that truck was that hit our head. This Jan. I would be different though. No sign of party beverages that had crept out of my mouth during the night. No mad dash to the porcelain god. Just the usual headache, a thought about where the hell I was and how did I get here, and what is this laying next to me, and of course, no partying would be complete without the crusty cotton mouth.

After eventually making my way home, I started to recollect some of the events from the prior night. Not many, just a few. And something that I couldn't get out of my head was a Faribault native and UMD student saying, "I've wanted to write a letter to the editor this whole year." Well, that's not so bad. "And say, Tobin Talk sucks." Ahhhhhhhhh. What is she saying? Is she crazy? Is she insane? Average. Maybe. Pathetic. Probably. Half-ass. For sure. But sucks? Please, let this recollection be just a terrifying nightmare.

As New Year's Day progressed and as I watched the Vikings get flushed, memories from the past night kept coming back to me. But for some evil reason that nightmare became more and more vivid in my head. "Tobin Talk sucks." Why? Why me? I think I was harmlessly talking to a couple of Faribault grads and they asked me if I still write. Yes, I said. Write a column? Yes. What's it called? Tobin Talk. Sweet, still ripping ass? Still the talk of the town like in Faribault? Well, not exactly. Then came that voice, "Tobin Talk sucks."

I'm a person who doesn't take too kindly to criticism. After all, I can do no wrong. I probably should've just shaken it off and kept writing these cheesy columns. However, that's not me. That's not what Jason Tobin is all about. I like to tell it like it is. If someone gives me a challenge, I take it. If someone tells me that I can't eat four pretzels in a minute, I do it. I nearly choked to death, but I did it.

I read a column by Duluth News-Tribune's Bruce Bennett a couple of months ago and I was appalled, like usual, with his columns. It was entitled, "Griggs Field becomes a Jurassic Park," and so I decided to read it because it had Griggs Field in the title. Bennett began his column with something to the effect that if you want to see a real, live dinosaur, go to UMD on Saturday to see Coach Malosky.

What? How can he say that? Especially at his age. A man gives 37 years as head coach of the UMD football team and he has the balls to tell him he's been there too long. However, as I read further, Bennett's point becomes more and more clear to me. The game has caught up to Malosky. No, let me take that back. The game has passed ol' Mo. And I'm not just saying that because I'm still pissed that he gave me an A- in badminton. Sure, this year was his first losing season in 25 years and Malosky has a career mark of 235-114-12 and he's the winningest active head coach in Division II football. However, something happened this year that opened my eyes for a number of reasons.

Who were the geniuses that came up with this year's schedule? Football is supposed to be your big revenue maker. Your home opener is your most important game, for it's your largest crowd and it has a big impact on whether or not those people are going to come back. So who do these masterminds put on the schedule as the Bulldogs' home opener? St. Cloud State. A team that has beaten UMD 80-0 over the past two years. Well, the Huskies made that 115-7 over the past three years in front of a packed Griggs Field.

It's the mid '90s and there is a plethora of available offenses that one can run. There's the run-n-shoot option, etc. What do the Bulldogs stick with? The same boring offense that most teams abandoned years ago. What is UMD going to do next? Oooh, a run up the middle. What a surprise.

After talking to a couple of Moorhead State players over break, it finally occurred to me. I was honestly ashamed of UMD for the first time. Not because they beat UMD this year, but because of the lack of respect they gave Mo. It was then that I realized that it's time. It's time for Mo to step aside, look back at his 37 great years and 235 victories, and let everyone thank Coach Malosky for all that he's done for Bulldog football and give him the respect that he deserves.

Tobin is looking to join a Viking support group.

'Dogs host Denver at the DECC

By Zach Johns
Hockey Correspondent

Although most UMD students were enjoying Winter Break during the last two weeks, the Bulldog hockey team had little time to relax.

The 'Dogs played two WCHA games, two non-conference contests, and an exhibition game during the break and did fairly well, skating to a 3-2 record during the period. UMD's record is now 7-12-2 overall and 4-11-2 in the WCHA where they share ninth place with Alaska-Anchorage.

Last weekend UMD traveled to Colorado Springs to face the Colorado College Tigers who lead the WCHA with a 12-4-0 record. The Tigers, who are 17-5-0 overall, are rated second in the nation according to the latest College Hockey USA poll. Friday night UMD lost 6-3 despite goals from Rod Aldoff, Brad Federenko and Joe Ciccarello.

"Friday night we didn't capitalize on our chances," UMD Head Coach Mike Sertich said, referring to two five-on-three power plays his team did not score on. "We just didn't get it in the goal."

UMD came back on Saturday and stunned the Tigers with a 6-5 upset. It looked as if Colorado was going to have an easy time early in the game as they carried a 4-0 lead with 21 minutes left in the game.

The Bulldogs made a late surge, however, scoring 5 goals in the third period. Senior Joe Ciccarello scored twice and assisted on another to lead the Bulldogs to the come-from-behind victory.

Bulldogs' Joe Tamminen (13) stands tall on defense against Union College, while Ken Dzikowski (32) lays a check along the boards. weekend with the absence of top-scorer Rusty Fitzgerald, who has been suspended indefinitely following an incident outside of Grandma's Sports Garden on New Year's Eve.

According to the Duluth News-Tribune, Fitzgerald alleges that three men challenged him while he was leaving the Sports Garden and a fight erupted. An off-duty police officer who was working as a bouncer that night tried to break-up the fight and said Fitzgerald would not stop fighting when told to do so.

Fitzgerald, a senior left-winger, now faces a court hearing on February 1, after pleading innocent to misdemeanor disorderly conduct.

In 17 games this season, Fitzgerald has scored 11 goals and 11 assists to lead the team with 22 points.

Sertich, who issued the suspension, had no further comment on the matter. "I have no more comment on that," Sertich said. "I said what needed to be said and did what I needed to do ... it's something that will have to be cleared up in the court."

Earlier in the break, UMD played one game with a top-notch team from Europe, the Brynas Tigers of Sweden's elite league. Although they lost 6-2, the Bulldogs got to test their skills against a very talented hockey team.

Sertich described the Swedes as "maybe the most impressive team I've seen in our building. They were very outgoing, nice people, and great hockey players."

Also on UMD's Winter Break agenda was Union College. UMD dominated both games of the series winning by scores of 6-3 and 4-3. Brad Federenko and Brett Larson each had two goals to lead the Bulldogs to a two-game sweep.

A large factor in UMD's sweep was the Bulldogs ability to keep the puck on Union's side. In fact, during Wednesday's game, UMD goalie Taras Lendzyk had to stop only 16 shots while the Dutchmen's Luigi Villa saved 45.

"Territorially we were very dominant," Sertich said of the series. "We had pretty good territorial control - puck control."

UMD back-up goalie Niklas Axelsson won his first start of the season in the Thursday night game and had a pretty solid performance after letting the first shot slip by him.

"He played very well," Sertich said of the senior.

This weekend UMD will host the University of Denver Pioneers. Denver is currently 10-6-0 in WCHA games and in second place in the league. UMD hopes to snap an impressive streak in which Denver has won 11 out of its last 12 games. According to Sertich, the Pioneers are the cream of the WCHA.

"I think they're the most talented team in our league," Sertich said. "I think offensively they have the most gifted people. It'll be a tough time, no question."

The games are 7:35 Friday and 7:05 Saturday.

Tips for winter mountain biking

By Cory Gross
Staff Writer

Yes, winter is here. It's cold and it gets dark early. But that doesn't mean you have to park your mountain bike in the basement or garage.

Don't think of winter as a time to stop riding, but rather as a change of pace or scenery. Snowy remote landscapes offer peace and stillness that is hard to find even in the summer months. A few tips and some common sense can help you enjoy the challenge of winter riding.

First, get set up with a studded tire (1/4 inch sheet metal screws work well), put the spiked tire on the front wheel for control when steering and cornering.

Next, let some of the air out of your tires, keep between 25-40 psi, this will allow the tire to make a bigger footprint in the snow for added traction. Make sure that you dress in layers - a wicking layer followed by a polypropylene layer, then a wind protection layer is the best way to go. Stay hydrated. It is recommended that you drink every 15 minutes when you ride. Don't go near ice without spikes or chains, and watch for open water and thin ice. Try to keep your rides short. Go out and have some fun, but don't go for any killer endurance rides when temps dive below zero.

The best places to ride are where the snowmobiles go. They pack down the trail to create good conditions. Hartley Park and Hawk's Ridge are close to campus and have excellent trails for winter riding. Stay off the ski trails; skiers get pretty ticked when you trash their trails.

Winter riding isn't for everyone, but then neither is summer riding. Keep your rides short and fun, dress in layers and stay hydrated and you will be ready for Duluth winter riding.

The fourth annual Soul Food Dinner will take place Saturday, Jan. 18, at 7 p.m., in Kirby Ballroom.

Ticket prices are $12 for adults and $6 for students. Proceeds will benefit the Clayton, Jackson and McGhie Scholarship fund.

For more information, please contact Ken Foxworth, 726-6187.

Circle of Friends Brown Bag Lunch

The Circle of Friends (formerly Minority Caucus) was established last August to serve as a forum to address issues and concerns common to minority faculty and staff members at UMD and to provide a mechanism for social interaction and fellowship.

The next brown bag meeting of the Circle of Friends is scheduled for Wednesday, Jan. 25, at noon, in the Regents Room, Fifth Floor of the Darland Administration Building. Dr. Robert Powless will share with our group a story entitled "The American Indian: Life in 4 Worlds."

If you would like to learn more about this group or would like to be added to or deleted from our circulation list, please call Cathy Oraskovich of the Affirmative Action office at 6827.

Professionally speaking...

Come find out the career possibilities a psychology major makes possible! A counseling/clinical psychologist, art therapist, school counselor, medical social worker, and industrial-organizational psychologist will be discussing their experiences on Monday, Jan. 30, at 4 p.m., in the Bull Pub.

Everyone is welcome to come and listen or ask questions. Co-sponsored by Career Services, Psi Chi, Psych Club, and the Psychology Peer Advisors.

Winter Workshops for Freshmen

"Where Does All the Money Go?"--I had $20 yesterday and now it's gone! Do I call home again?

Keeping money in your pocket goes beyond simply saving. Join us to discover new ways to manage your dollars on Tuesday, Jan. 17, 6:30-7:15 p.m., in Lib 120.

These workshops are conducted by students who are teaching assistants with the Achievement Center. The workshops are informal and designed to give students opportunities to learn techniques to help them be successful. For more information contact the First Year Experience Office at 726-6278.

Freshmen and Sophomores

"How do I decide on a major?" Deciding on a major is a major decision. If you are tired of answering the questions "What's your major?" with "I haven't decided yet," start off the new year by picking the major that's right for you!

Small group meetings will be held on Thursdays from Jan. 19-Feb. 9, from 1-1:50 p.m., in BohH 311.

Call Career Services at 726-7985 to sign up. Space is available for 10 persons.

Socratic Society

The next meeting will be held Wednesday, Jan. 18, at 4 p.m., at JD's Java (1431 E. Superior Street). The topic: Abortion. The key issues: 1) Nature of personhood; 2) Rights and value of personhood.

Alcoholics Anonymous

If you think you have a problem with alcohol, this may be for you.

We are a group of people who understand what it's like to need relief from the pressures of everyday living--school work, keeping a job, relationships, etc... If drinking is no longer a luxury, but a necessity, and you can't seem to keep it under control anymore, come see us.

We are Alcoholics Anonymous, and we meet every Wednesday (except during breaks) in K351, upstairs next to the Ballroom, at 5 p.m. If you need us, we need you, too.

For more information about his meeting (or any other in the area) contact Greg M. at 720-3419 (e-mail gmonk@ub.d.umn.edu), or call intergroup at 727-8117.

Chi Alpha Christian Fellowship

Looking for a place to fit in? Come join us! Student meetings will be held Mondays at 8 p.m., in the Kirby Rafter. For information contact Chuck Haavik, 728-6266.

Intl. Brown Bag

Today at noon in K323, Al Burnham, Lecturer, Dept. of History, will present "D-Day: 50th Anniversary Commemorations in France."

Burnham has visited many of the World War II battle sites as they commemorate their 50th anniversaries. A WWII history buff and teacher of military history, Professor Burnham will tell us what it was like to be there for the 50th anniversary commemoration of the allied invasion of Europe, June 6, 1994.

On Thursday, Jan. 19, "Images of Women in Africa" will be presented by UMD professors Linda Miller-Cleary, Sabra Anderson and Joyce Kramer.

They have all been to East Africa at various times traveling for pleasure and researching indigenous people. Through slides and talk, they will share their views on the changing role of women in Africa.

MPIRG meeting

The next weekly meeting of the Minnesota Public Interest Research Group (MPIRG) will be held on Tuesday, Jan. 17, at 5 p.m., in the Bull Pub.

Please join us. Get involved in social justice and environmental change. Active task forces are forestry, energy, social justice/day care, and cultural diversity. We are interested in starting a women's or human rights task force. For questions, please call 726-8157. All students, faculty, and staff are welcome.

MPIRG refunds

Student fee refunds will be available from MPIRG Jan. 12, from 10 am.-2 p.m. Please come to the MPIRG office, K192, to fill out the forms. We must see your current fee statement and your college ID. For questions, please call 726-8157.

Toxicology Seminar

"Nitric Oxide: a toxic metabolite of activated macrophages" will be presented by Rodney Dietert, Ph.D., Professor and Senior Fellow, Center for the Environment, Cornell University, on Tuesday, Jan. 17, at 3:30 p.m., broadcast live between Minneapolis Moos Tower 1-752 and UMD Lib 173.

Sponsored by the University of Minnesota Toxicology Graduate Program. The seminar is open to the public. All faculty and students are encouraged to attend.

Alpha Mu Gamma meeting

Alpha Mu Gamma, the Foreign Language Club, has its next meeting on Wednesday, Jan. 18, at 4 p.m. We will meet at Pizza Hut on London Road. Hope to see you there.

Outdoor Program

•Telemark Skiing at Spirit Mountain - Thursday, Jan. 12, 4-9 p.m., $6 UMD students/$13 others.

•Natural History Snowshoe on the Superior Hiking Trail - Saturday, Jan. 14, 9 a.m.-5 p.m., $14 UMD students/$24 others.

•Women's Climbing Night - Thursday, Jan. 19, 6-9 p.m., $3.50 UMD students/$7.50 others.

For information and reservations, call Beth at 726-6533.

Registration Information

SFA

Students may pick up class schedules, registration information and instructions in the SFA Office of Student Affairs, H212, starting January 17. The School of Fine Arts has mandatory advisement. Students should see their advisers for advisement and to obtain their registration status notice. Your status notice will be your permission to register.

Advisement begins on January 23, and runs through February 10. Make an appointment to see your adviser as soon as possible before advisement begins. If you don't know who your adviser is, please ask in your departmental office or the School of Fine Arts Office of Student Affairs, H212.

The advisement schedule is as follows:

Seniors and Juniors, Jan. 23-27

Sophomores, Jan. 30-Feb. 3

Freshmen, Feb. 6-10

Queued registration will begin on January 30, 1995.

Upper division papers (degree requirement forms) must be filed before completing 105 credits or a hold will be placed on your record. This will prevent you from registering until you have filed this form.

All holds must be cleared before you register — including any holds placed on your record after your RSN is generated. You can check if you have holds by accessing your record through the Student Access System.

The School of Fine Arts has a Peer Advisement Program. Peer advisers will meet with students anytime during their office hours. If you desire to meet with a peer adviser, stop in the School of Fine Arts Office of Student Affairs, H212.

Students should complete a course repeat card if they plan to repeat a course. This must be turned in at the Information Desk in the Darland Administration Building. Students are allowed to repeat a course in which they received a grade of below C- or an N. Grades of C- or P or above require departmental approval.

SBE

REGISTRATION MATERIALS will be available beginning January 17. Students may pick up registration materials in the department office where their faculty adviser is located. Students assigned to Bolen or Torison may pick up materials in SBE 104. Students assigned to Dale Olson may pick up materials in Lib 134. Remember to bring your UM ID card with you.

Advisement week is scheduled for Jan. 23-Feb. 3. Students are strongly encouraged to meet with their adviser. Sign-up sheets will be posted in each department. Advisement for Bolen's, Olson's, and Torison's advisees runs through Feb. 17.

SPRING AND SUMMER 1995 GRADUATES who have received credit checks will be given priority registration for Spring Quarter SBE classes (and Comp 3120), only if they hand in a course enrollment request form and an insurance card to Laurelei Gunsolus in SBE 104 by Jan. 20. There are limited spaces in some courses so make sure that you use this privilege of pre-registration. Make sure that you include second and third choices, especially for Comp 3120 and MgtS 3362.

FALL 1995 GRADUATES wishing to pre-register for their final SBE classes for Fall Quarter must have an approved graduation plan on file in SBE 104 by Feb. 17, 1995.

ATTENTION - STUDENTS NOT ADMITTED TO CANDIDACY: If you are completing your last lower division course(s) this spring and you are GPA eligible, register for those last courses plus any desired upper division Non-SBE electives. On February 15, come to SBE 104 beginning at 8:45 a.m. to pick up overrides for any open upper division SBE courses. Bring your fee statement. First come, first served.

CHANGING OR DECLARING YOUR MAJOR WITHIN SBE: If you are changing or declaring your major within SBE, you must go to SBE 104 and fill out a change of SBE major form. This is essential in order for you to have the right major code and be assigned to an appropriate adviser.

SBE WAITING LIST PROCEDURES - These procedures are for day school courses or for day school spaces in a CEE course. The waiting lists are handled by the individual departments. If you wish to be added to a waiting list, simply go to the department that offers the course and contact the department secretary. To be eligible for any waiting list:

1) You must have registered, or attempted to register.

2) You must be eligible for the class (i.e. fulfilled the prerequisites and the section checks requirements. Refer to your class schedule.)

3) You may not be on the list for more than one section of the same class, or be registered for a different section of the same class.

4) You must attend the first day of class to see if the instructor will allow you to add. If you are allowed to add: a) sign the SBE add form for the course (see instructor); b) department secretary will input electronic approval code for you to add the class; c) add the course by telephone or terminal registration.

SPECIAL OPPORTUNITY SPRING QUARTER: STUDY WITH WILLIAM R. PETERSON, THE 3M MCKNIGHT VISITING PROFESSOR IN THE INDUSTRIAL ENGINEERING DEPARTMENT, ON HOW TO EFFECTIVELY INTRODUCE NEW TECHNOLOGIES INTO EXISTING ORGANIZATIONS. Dr. Peterson has over 15 years of industrial experience in production, operations management, and engineering and degrees in industrial engineering and business. Gain hands-on experience working in teams with IE students as you consult with small companies in the region. The course, IE 5800, is open to juniors and seniors; it will meet on Mondays and Wednesdays from 4:30 to 5:45 p.m.

Please consult with your adviser or with Student Affairs in SBE 104 to determine where this course best fits into your degree program. It may be used for credit in any of the management majors or as a non-SBE elective for other BBA and BAC students. Information will also be posted in key areas in SBE.

CLA

CLA Students may pick up Class Schedules and CLA Registration Information Sheets beginning Tuesday, January 17, from CLA Student Affairs, Cina 116, between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

RSN: You can pick up your Registration Status Notice (RSN) from one of the following:

- 1) Your adviser
- 2) Major departmental office
- 3) Group advisement

This is your permit to register, which indicates your set queue time. You will need to know your queue time in order to register by phone or computer.

ADVISOR/GROUP ADVISEMENT: See your adviser or attend group advisement if your major department offers it during the following times:

Seniors/Juniors Jan. 17-20
Sophomores Jan. 23-27
Freshmen Jan. 30-Feb. 3
The registration queue begins Monday, Jan. 30, 1995.

HOLDS: Some holds may/or may not appear on your RSN. Check with the Student Access System (SAS) for an up-to-date view of any holds on your records. Any holds appearing on your RSN, or record, at the time of registration must be taken care of before registering. Temporary releases are obtained from the major department.

REPEATING A COURSE? If you register for a course which is a repeat from a previous quarter, you must submit a Course Repeat Card at the time you register. This card is available at the Darland Info Desk or in Cina 116.

OVERRIDES: Overrides can be obtained from the instructor, which you will need in order to register for the class.

HEALTH INSURANCE: You must submit your insurance card with the company and policy number on it to the Registrar's, or you will be charged for the UMD Health Insurance.

CEHSP

CEHSP students may pick up Spring Quarter 1995 class schedules and registration information in the Student Affairs Office, BohH 113, beginning Tuesday, Jan. 17, 1995.

CEHSP students are required to meet with their advisers during Advisement Days, Jan. 17-27. Advisers will have sign-up sheets posted on their office doors. Also check the CEHSP Registration Step By Step handout for specific information about advisement for your major. If you don't know who your adviser is, look it up on the student access system computers or check with Student Affairs, BohH 113. Registration Status Notices (RSNs) will be given to students during their advising appointments. Your RSN has your registration queue time on it, which you will need when you register.

UNDECIDED majors will receive advisement in the Student Affairs Office, BohH 113. Please sign up for your advisement appointment with either Sue Brashaw or Julie Korman, the CEHSP Academic Counselors.

Students who have concerns about their grade point average or academic record are encouraged to see either Julie or Sue.

Students on PROBATION are required to meet with one of the CEHSP Academic Counselors before they will be permitted to register for Spring Quarter classes. Sign up for an appointment with either Julie or Sue on the sheet inside BohH 113.

Students who have been academically dismissed and would like help to get readmitted into CEHSP are also encouraged to see one of the CEHSP Academic Counselors.

Please check the center section of your RSN for HOLDS.

You must clear all holds before you can register. Some types of holds may be placed on your record after your RSN is printed. You may also check your record on the student access system computers for additional holds.

Communication Disorders majors who have more than 105 credits and have not completed their upper division papers will have an 04 HOLD on their RSN.

GRADUATING teacher education students should pick up their Minnesota teaching license applications and information in BohH 113.

CSE

Registration materials available: Tuesday, Jan. 17

Advisement period:

Juniors and Seniors, Jan. 23-27

Sophomores, Jan. 30-Feb. 4

Freshmen, Feb. 6-10

Registration Period: Jan. 30-Feb. 17

1) Pick up Spring 1995 Class Schedules, Registration and Advisement Instructions, Telephone Registration Instructions, Advising Newsletter, and other registration materials in the CSE Student Affairs Office, 140 Engr. Materials will be available Jan. 17.

2) Make an appointment with your adviser by signing up on the advising sheet on your adviser's office door. If you do not know who your advisor is, check with CSE Student Affairs.

Registration Status Notices will be handed out during advisement. Registration Status Notices are required for all registration, both telephone and in-person. Advisement begins Jan. 23.

3) Group advisement has been planned for some departments. Group advisement announcements will be made in the Registration and Advisement instructions. If your department has planned group advisement, follow those instructions instead of signing up for an individual appointment. Registration Status Notices will be handed out at group advisement sessions.

4) Students with 105 or more credits completed before Winter 1995 must have upper division papers filed in order to register. If you have not filed, there will be a hold on your Registration Status Notice that will prevent you from registering for Spring Quarter. The hold notice will say "DSCE - UD - 134 Eng." The hold will be released only when papers are filed. Upper division papers may be picked up in the CSE Student Affairs office.

Questions? Call CSE Student Affairs at 726-7585 or 726-7584, or come to the Student Affairs Office, Engr. 140.
